The Country With the President

From the New York Herald.
The President has the right to expect the undivided support of the country in any war with Mexico or any other foreign country. The country has the right to expect of the President an unflinching and unswerving course after war has once been entered upon.

So far as the Herald is concerned, it gives its support to President Wilson ungrudgingly and without any criticism and in line with its traditional policy. In his desire to escape the wider consequences of general hostilities, Mr. Wilson has shown a patience almost saintlike. He has tried sorely many of his friends. He has laid himself open to attacks sometimes almost vicious in their bitterness. His desire has been to go to extreme lengths in avoiding a conflict in the Western Hemisphere and at the same time to bring about permanent peace and prosperity within Mexican territory itself without resorting to intervention.

Advice to 56.

Two nights ago I played some cards

And got to bed at 2.
I rose at 7, but all day long
My work was hard to do.

Last night I "hit the hay" at 10.
And rose at 7 A. M.

And all this day I've done my work
With vigor, verve and vim.

So all ye readers of this screed
At and near 56

Take note of this experience—
Don't play on sleep these tricks.

DANGER IN SUMMER SPORTS

Majority of Fatalities Are Among Those Who Are Overconfident and Take Chances.

After all precautions have been taken, after children have been instructed and warned about dangers in aquatic sport, after the police, school and other officials have done their best, we must still expect many deaths from drowning this summer.

Nowhere is preparedness a greater asset against serious accident than in boating, canoeing and swimming. The efforts made by the police, the schools and others to teach the simple measures of common sense necessary afford the best protection against disaster. Yet there is another element which should be impressed upon the trained canoeists and the expert swimmers. These should be taught not to place too great reliance on their skill. Usually it is the experienced swimmer who drowns, and he drowns because of carelessness and too great confidence.

All that has been said here is known to everybody. Yet the record of each season shows these things were not said often enough or impressively enough to prevent deaths. Thoughtfulness, presence of mind and wisdom enough to avoid taking unnecessary chances are the subjects of the best lessons those who frequent the water in the summer can learn.

SEEKING ELIMINATION OF FOG

Smithsonian Institution Experimenting on Possibility of Dissipation Through Use of Electricity.

The Smithsonian institution announces that it has made an appropriation to further experiments in the dissipation of fog by electricity, and that the investigations will be carried out under the general direction of Dr. F. G. Cottrell, who has already done much toward the practical precipitation of dust, smoke and chemical fumes in large industrial establishments. The idea of dispersing fog by electrical methods has been before the public for a number of years, though it appears never to have reached the stage of feasibility, on a commercial scale. The subject has recently aroused fresh attention, particularly in the neighborhood of San Francisco, through researches planned by the University of California in co-operation with the United States lighthouse service. The American Institute of Electrical Engineers has also appointed a committee to co-operate in this work. According to the Smithsonian report, the essential element to success seems to be some form of electrical apparatus of very high direct voltage, with facilities for its control and ready application.

THEY COME HIGHER.

"You used to tell me that I had the dearest little foot in the world," said she, poutingly.

"That was lovers' talk," said he, "but if you don't quit paying ten dollars for boots, bless me if I won't believe I spoke the truth."

SUPREME SACRIFICE.

Louis—Don't you get awfully hungry when you have no cook?

Julia—Horribly! Sometimes I'm almost willing to eat what I cook myself.—Life.

LITERAL DWELLING.

"I hear that Jones lives in almost strophied sequestration."

"Nothing of the sort; he lives in the suburbs."

COMPARISONS.

"My butler left me without any warning."

"You got off easy. Mine left me without any spoons."

SIGNS AND TOKENS.

"I am told Jinks is a rising politician."

"Anybody might know that by his general get-up."

NO CHOICE.

She (sternly)—I heard a suspicious noise last evening.

He (facetiously)—Was it the night falling or the day breaking?

THE DEFICIENCY.

"That woman is a perfect talking machine."

"No, not a perfect machine. That has an exhaust."

WORKERS' FRIEND TO LECTURE HERE

George L. McNutt, Whose Peculiar Experiences Taught Him Wisdom.

TO TELL HIS STORY HERE.

Was on Redpath-Vawter Circuit Ten Years Ago and Comes Back.

Ten years ago, when Keith Vawter began the operation of Chautauqua, he engaged George L. McNutt as one of the attractions for his first circuit program. He chose him then because of his sterling worth as a lecturer and has ever since had a desire to get him again.

This season Mr. Vawter was fortunate enough to secure McNutt and grabbed him up in a hurry. It is appropriate that there should appear on the tenth anniversary program one of the attractions of Vawter's first season. McNutt has grown stronger and more popular as the years have gone by. He still talks about the dinner pail, but he has sounded the depths of the human heart in ten years of labor and research among those who work with their hands.

The action of this preacher, laying aside his Prince Albert, substituting overalls and jumper and taking up the hard manual toil of the laborer in order to study his problems at close range, gives a peculiar charm to McNutt's message.

THE SHACKLES OF THE WORLD

Great Prison Worker to Lecture at Chautauqua on Sane Reform.

This able orator, Chaplain E. H. Lougher, has been secured to deliver his great address on "The Shackles of the World."

No man living has a better right to speak on this theme. No man is better equipped from the standpoint of investigation and personal experience. Lougher is not a sensationalist, but yet he creates profound sensations.

He is a living encyclopedia of facts and figures on criminology and speaks his convictions in words of fire. He is thoroughly in earnest and has a set purpose in his platform work.

His long experience in prison work among criminals has given him a keen insight into prison problems, and wonderfully warmed his native sympathies. He is not a crank, however, and deals with the absorbing questions involved in a sane and sensible way.
